Local Roots Hard Kombucha Boochoyard

1430 Vantage Ct, Vista, CA 92081

Local Roots opened their Boochoyard taproom and event space in March 2022. The indoor-outdoor, hard kombucha mecca is fast becoming a popular venue for fundraisers, corporate events, birthdays, and weddings. Customers enjoy ample parking, a 5,000-sq-ft outdoor patio, and high-ceilinged 3,000-sq-ft indoor space with pool tables, a foosball table, a dart board, and wide-screen televisions. There's a rotating selection of 16 flavors of hard kombucha on tap with non-alcoholic 'booch also available. Patrons can sit at the bar, share a communal table, or relax on welcoming sofas.

The cafe serves a mouthwatering selection of plant-based dishes, from crispy wraps to dumplings and curries. Chef Jai Wulfbain adds savory sauces to his creations that satisfy even the most committed meat lover.

The Boochoyard is looking forward to a sizzling summer serving of cool kombucha with live music every weekend and plans to host headline bands.

New Leaf Kombucha

37 Crummer Road,
Grey Lynn, Auckland,
New Zealand

Head Brewer Derek and the team opened New Zealand's first kombucha taproom four years ago. Kombucha is all they do, and they always have five different kombuchas on tap, as well as many more in bottles to go. They focus on the tea and never use additives, flavorings, colorings, or preservatives. Everything is brewed on-site and the taproom features a large window into the fermentation room so customers can see how kombucha is brewed. They are family-friendly and open seven days a week, with wifi and even a talking parrot!

Kombucha Iceland

Laugavegur 2, Reykjavík, Iceland

Kombucha Iceland opened its first taproom five years ago in Frú Lauga, a small shop and farmers market in Reykjavík, Iceland. Indeed, the first kombucha they sold to customers was on tap since they did not yet sell in bottles. Manuel handcrafted the wood-faced refrigerated kombucha bar. Soon many kombucha lovers started to show up, filling their own bottles to take away or just having a glass of fresh Icelandic kombucha while shopping. The success was better than they anticipated and they opened in multiple locations. Today they have factory made kegerators and of course bottled kombucha for sale in six locations, but the old handcrafted bar is still serving kombucha to happy customers in the same place.

Aquela Kombucha

Rua Duque de Saldanha 345
Porto, Portugal

Located in the Bonfim neighborhood of Porto, close enough to the center to attract tourists but equally a place where residents stop by. Despite the challenges of the pandemic, the business has prospered on a quiet side street not far from the bustling downtown.

The location boasts Portugal's only taproom, a compact space with a half-dozen taps where new flavors regularly appear. One of the more recent additions is Manjerico, flavored with a basil-like plant which gives a nice grassy flavor to kombucha. Portuguese traditionally gift these small potted plants as a symbol of love on the June feast days St. Anthony and St. John.

Founder Maria Lima has established a sophisticated fermentary in the rear of the premises—visible to customers in the taproom.

Boochman Kombucha

915 University Ave., Berkeley, CA

Boochman Kombucha occupies a compact space, located on the western fringes of Berkeley, where they serve up a variety of 'booch that they brew on the premises and in local commercial kitchens.

Two sets of siblings started Boochman in 2018. Denisse Padilla and her brother Jose are from Mexico, and brothers Mustafa and Numan Karabiyik are from Turkey. Numan is the namesake "Boochman" — shown standing in front of the landmark UC Berkeley Campanile on their logo.

One challenge with the new location is the number of people who stop by the "Kombucha Bar" looking for a beer. The Karabiyiks do not drink alcohol for religious reasons (they are Muslim); Denisse Padilla said she gave up alcohol eight years ago. Since they all live a dry lifestyle, they were interested in opening a taproom for others like them.

Boochman offers a variety of flavors by the glass ($4.75) and by the growler ($12.25).

The KC Kombucha taproom in the Oak Park neighborhood of Sacramento operates out of a tiny, 500-square-foot store on the buzzy Broadway thoroughfare. Founded in 2017 with sales at Farmers Markets, the taproom opened in 2019 a few short weeks before COVID forced them to close for a period. Now reopened, they attract both the kombucha curious and a growing number of regulars. Founder Courtney Edwards serves a rotating series of flavors, including seasonal favorites such as Hibiscus Rose, Butterfly Lemonade, Coconut Lime, Lemon Zest, Cherry Sass, and citrus-infused Creamsicle. Since they opened, the price has been a stable 25 cents a liquid ounce.
